Able angler

It might not be the biggest bass caught in Haliburton, but it certainly was an exciting catch for Michael Brown of Minden. The 13 year old landed this four pound, 19 inch bass July 31 while angling with his uncle, Doug Moore of Udora. The pair were fishing on South Lake using worms when the bass latched on to Michael's line. It took him 15 minutes to land the fish. Michael is the son of Gary and Bev Brown, Bobcaygeon Road north, Minden.

Mississauga woman injured when car hits rock face

A Mississauga woman was treated for minor injuries at Minden Red Cross Hospital when her car went out of control and hit a rock face in the south ditch of county road 1, Saturday morning.

Elizabeth Demchuk, 42, was driving east when the accident occurred.

The 1978 car sustained $1,500 damage.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Barry Connelly.

Car rolls

A Scarborough man was uninjured when his car rolled down an embankment along Devils Lake Road, in Glamorgan Township last Saturday morning.

Robert Allen, 52 of Scarborough, was eastbound when the car rolled off the south side of the road.

Damage to the 1972 stationwagon was estimated at $2,000.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Brian Dunham.

Hits rock cut

A northbound car went out of control and struck a rock cut in the east ditch of highway 35, south of Minden, early last Saturday morning.

Brian Thorn, 21, of Willowdale, was uninjured while the 1973 pick-up he was driving received $1,000 damage.

Water skier hits dock

A water skier was rushed by ambulance to the Minden Red Cross Hospital Saturday evening when he accidentally ran into a dock and nose-dived into the water on the other side.

Mother says day care centre needed

Minden mothers need a day care centre and they are going to try to get one.

Wanita Pipe, a working mother, has set up a petition-type list asking women to sign if they would like a day care centre. The list is at the Minden IGA where Mrs. Pipe works.

"I've got 15 kids signed up already and no one knows about it yet," she said Monday night.

She said that it is very difficult to find competent babysitters in the area.

"I've put ads in the paper and all I seem to get are calls from 14-year-old kids. I've had three sitters already this summer," Mrs. Pipe explained.

When enough support is received, Mrs. Pipe would like to present the petition to council to see if they will establish a day care centre or help support one.

"We need one badly," Mrs. Pipe said.

Previously Mrs. Pipe had contacted Anson, Hindon and Minden council, but has not received a reply.

No spraying here....MNR

No, the Minden district doesn't spray.

And in these days when anti-pollutionists are screaming about this spray being used or that spray being used, it is a welcome relief.

What the Minden district of the Ministry of Natural Resources doesn't spray is an insect called the spruce budworm.

These small insects, according to the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, feed on the young needle of coniferous trees especially balsam fir.

Although infestation is serious in northern Ontario and other eastern provinces, Brian Cross of the Minden district, says that budworm is not a large enough problem in the area to warrant spraying.

Because of the mixed forest condition in the area and with hardwood being predominant, an outbreak of budworm wouldn't result in a disaster, according to Mr. Cross.

He pointed out that spraying is only used in high use areas (where balsam is one of the predominant species).

"It's like comparing apples and oranges...it really relates to northern Ontario," Mr. Cross added.

Budworm usually infests mature uniform stands of fir.

New president for Trent University

Trent University in Peterborough has a new president and vice chancellor.

Professor Donald F. Theall's appointment to the post was announced last week by David Woods, chairman of the university's board of governors. Theall takes over from Professor T.E.W. Nind at the end of the year.

Theall is 50 years of age and is a graduate of Yale University as well as the University of Toronto. At present Dr. Theall is Molson Professor and founding director of McGill University's Graduate Program in Communications.

Holder of numerous teaching and research positions, Theall is also the author of a number of books including The Medium is the Rear View Mirror: Understanding McLuhan.

According to Woods, Theall was the unanimous choice of a search committee which was established last fall. Serving on the committee were three members of the board of governors, three members of the faculty and three representatives of the student body.

FROM THE CHAMBER

Record week

If there were any way of actually counting the number of visitors in the area over the past 10 days we are convinced it would show that all previous records would have been broken. The travel counsellors have been extremely busy trying to find accommodation for people who had not reserved ahead, in many cases to no avail.

Since the Sportsman Show, all indications have been that it would be a busy summer, and our predictions have been fairly accurate. There are however changes in tourist patterns that we must be on the look-out for. The most obvious are travel closer to home, less use of trailers and motor homes, and a tendency to plan ahead less. Visitors have also made it very clear that they want top notch, clean, and well kept facilities, and provided they get what they want they don't mind paying more for it.

Much as we are pleased to see this season going so well we are concerned with the fact that many visitors were disappointed because they either could find no accommodation, or had to accept something they found unsatisfactory. If we could somehow convince all the holidays to do so other than just the middle four weeks of the summer, we could alleviate much of this pressure.

Algonquin Park

The Algonquin Park Master Plan is now up for its "Five Year Review." The provincial Park's Council which acts as an advisory board to the Ministry has been holding a number of meetings to receive input from the public on the future of the park. The final meetings are to be held in Huntsville on August 17th, and in the park on August 18th.

There are many ways the park affects us and both the Chamber and the County Economic Development Commission expect to make presentations. Any member of the public, or interest group may do likewise. Much of this initial plan was prepared without seeking any local input, and now that it is being reviewed it is up to us to see that local input from our area is not lacking.

Another new business

Anyone visiting Wilberforce for the first time in several weeks gets a bit of a surprise when glancing at the old L.C.B.O. store and being hit with a huge sign simply saying "Bottoms Up". We thought the L.C.B.O. had gone "mod". In actual fact, they have moved to new self serve premises just a block away towards the rear of the curling rink, and their former location has been taken over by Ray and Gail Krupa (it was Gail Tallman until she tied the knot a few weeks ago.) and the name "Bottoms Up" indicates that they specialize in slacks and jeans - but they also carry many other lines of attractive apparel. This is a welcome new addition to the many new businesses being established in and around Wilberforce and we wish Ray and Gail many years of success.

Events coming and going

The South Algonquin Kinsmen Club is going to be congratulated on taking the initiative to bring some of the finest talent into the Wilberforce area that residents can remember seeing. The Family Brown greatly impressed all those in attendance last Saturday and surely most will return to the arena on August 25th to enjoy "Rainbow," an extremely popular group from England. Tickets $8.00 per couple in advance, or $10.00 at the door.

The Guild of Fine Arts "Rail's End Gallery" has now completed its highly successful Auction Sale and is moving on to its "Art on the Board Walk" sale this weekend. On Saturday, August 11th various artists will be renting space along the station platform to display and sell their creations. In the meantime, inside the Gallery area, a display of "The Best of Ontario Crafts People" is now on exhibit until the 28th of August. From then until the 15th of September the private collection of one of our newer residents, Ray Goulet, will be displayed. This is an extremely extensive collection of Eskimo Art.

It is once again County Fair time in Minden this week-end. This event is distinctly different from our regular summer carnivals in that it is a county effort, and it is an agricultural fair. In addition to the midway and the interesting exhibits there will be a western horse show, horse drawing, harness racing baseball tournament, horseshoe contest and a "Funky Field Day". Saturday starts with the county's biggest parade and ends with the County Fair Ball in the arena.

We would like to encourage members of the business community in particular to come out and participate in this parade. If you are proud of Haliburton County, and proud of your involvement in it, then we are sure to see you there.

Tickets for the "Haliburton is For Lovers" hand-stitched quilt will be on sale at the fair, and the draw will be held at the fair on Sunday.

See you all at the fair.

Passed away

It is with sincere regrets that we advise our readers of the passing of Bill Paul, owner operator of Hunter's Horn Inn. Mr. Paul had been very ill for some time. Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. Paul and members of the family.

STANHOPE NOTES

by A. F. Stevenson

The importance of giving accurate instructions as to the location of a fire, when calling in a fire alarm, became apparent to the writer on a recent Sunday while visiting a member of the department. A call was received stating that there was a fire at Vankoughnet road and the Buckslide road and volunteers and fire fighting vehicles converged at that point in a very few minutes. Finding no fire or sign of one, some of the members in their private vehicles scoured surrounding roads without success, taking some time.

Finally by means of C.B. and telephone, better instructions were obtained and after some further search the fire was located a considerable distance east and north of the point first given.

It turned out to be a person burning brush. The fire was well controlled though not too wisely timed. For some time the department has endeavoured to make the public aware of the need to give proper directions when giving warning of a fire, and to have someone at the location given, to enable the men to quickly get to the point of the fire.

Too often, the men and equipment get to the area but find there are numerous roads or driveways into bush concealed areas and no one to say which is the one to follow. In short if you have occasion to report a fire, make the instructions accurate, then, if at all possible, have someone meet the equipment and advise them as to the best road in to the fire.

Tennis courts

The nets for the tennis courts will be in place by the time this appears. The courts will be available for use during daylight hours from 9 a.m., with the only restrictions being that soft soled shoes must be worn and games limited to 30 minutes when others are waiting to get their turn on the courts.

We had recently stated that the Recreation Committee would call a meeting of those interested in forming a tennis club, but it has been decided not to do so at this time but to leave the initiative to those desiring to have a club.

Ringers

The horseshoe pitching courts will be installed soon and it is the hope of the committee that those interested will make use of them. Entries for the horseshoe tournament to be held on August 18 must be made between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. with a fee of $1.00. Pairs will be drawn at that time, and cash prizes will be made to those qualifying in the tournament.

Roads Superintendent Marvin Brown and Gerald Bain, Township Clerk, are handling details of the horseshoe tourney. For information call the Township office at 489-2379. Volunteer workers will be out at the Community Center grounds on the evening of August 15 and 17 to get things ready for the events on the eighteenth and Marvin is going to be on hand to provide some useful direction.

Our Township seems to be blessed with a staff of permanent employees who are quite resourceful and capable of giving valuable help and advice when it is needed.

Swimming program

The swimming program in Stanhope in the month of July was productive. Under the supervision of Marilyn Kinsman, 47 of the 48 enrolled, achieved passing standards and 4 took exams for their bronze medallion.

Parents are reminded that the children's theatre on August 18 begins at 11 a.m., so bring the children on time - it is free. While they enjoy their show you can take in the arts show, the crafts show, or watch the softball game, the horseshoe pitching or a tennis demonstration. And don't forget there is the beef barbeque to be followed by the opening ceremonies. There is also a bake sale and dog show with the trained O.P.P. dog as a featured attraction.

turned toward shore to let the skier off. Apparently Mr. Kennedy was watching the boat instead of the shore and hit one of the docks belonging to Little Hawk Resort on Little Hawk Lake.

According to police Mr. Kennedy was badly bruised but no bones were broken.

A hot cup of coffee

Is your coffee a little hotter than usual lately? Chances are if you are using a Proctor-Silex Automatic Drip Coffee Maker to brew your morning cup, things may just get a bit too hot.

According to the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) that coffee maker is a potential fire hazard. The CSA states that during the past few months a number of coffee makers of that brand have caught fire.

The appliances are manufactured by and bear the label of Proctor-Silex. They also carry the CSA approval mark.

Investigations by the manufacturer have shown that the flaming coffee brewers have been the result of improper servicing or tampering with the electrical system. The CSA therefore advises that if you have one of these coffee makers and it has been serviced or the bottom plate removed for any purpose, use of the appliance should be stopped at once. The base unit should be returned to the manufacturer for inspection and repair, if necessary. This service is being provided free of charge by Proctor-Silex.

The company requests that those returning the units for inspection only send the base portion. The accessories and glass carafe can be retained.

CSA notes that the design of the coffee maker is safe, but that the potential for hazard arises when the appliance has been serviced or the base plate opened. Therefore an owner who experiences a problem with a coffee maker of this brand is urged to return it to the manufacturer for servicing rather than having it done locally.

The units can be sent to: Proctor-Silex Re-inspection Centre, P.O. Box 2100, Picton, Ontario, K0K 2T0.

Editorial

Dear Gordon

Gordon Sinclair
CFRB Radio,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Gordon:

While perhaps it is unfair on our part to comment on something we did not hear, we cannot allow your commentary of last week, with regard to the Vietnamese refugees, to go unchallenged.

In many ways, what you, and letters to the editor in various newspapers across the country, have had to say about the negative aspects of bringing the refugees to Canada is true. We agree, this country has an unemployment problem that demands immediate attention and our economy should be in better shape.

There will probably be some kind of backlast based on either so-called rational arguments or outright racial bigotry. And chances are that some of the refugees will find it extremely difficult to adapt to our culture and climate.

We agree that just because this country has seemingly vast stretches of wide open land doesn't mean we have resources to support an endless population influx.

These arguments, and others put forward by those like yourself, who are opposed to bringing the "boat people" here do include what some might term, reasonable points. However, these points all overlook one important factor, that is, if we share nothing else with people adrift on the South China Sea, we are all a part of the same global family. They are fellow human beings in need of help. The Canadians who are reaching out to help are saying in effect that while we may have problems here, the plight of these people is so much greater, so much more immediate, that we should momentarily set aside our present problems and do all we can for these refugees.

No, Canadians can not save all the sick and starving and dying people in the world. But as individual members of the world community and as a nation we must and should reach out to these people in an effort to relieve their suffering and hopefully to set an example to other nations of the world as to their global responsibility.

Sincerely, etc. etc.

P.S. Your derisive comments about "do-gooders" was hardly called for. If there is one thing that this world, our country or any community in this nation needs is more people to step forward as do-gooders. Caring about fellow human beings is not something repugnant. Surely we have enough complacent, apathetic people in the world today without comments such as yours degrading the efforts of individuals, not just those involved in the refugee campaign, who are willing to help those less fortunate than ourselves.

Dog days of summer

by Hal Burton

August.

Some call these the dog days of summer, but for more than a few in the area where I grew up, this was the busiest time of the year. Nature gave up its bountiful return as the fields turned golden and the branches of the fruit trees sagged low with their tasty harvest. Stoves in the summer kitchens saw extra duty as mothers, and grandmothers, toiled over steaming cauldrons, the open mouths of gleaming preserving jars standing neatly in a row. The smell of the freshly mown grass mingled with the sweet air of jams and jellies in the making and every so faintly one could taste the biting tang of late summer. The air was fresh with the change of the season.

As a youngster though, August held a special excitement for me. Early in the month, just as the first fields were touched with gold, the signs would appear, seemingly overnight, at just about every country intersection. The posters were resplendent with the clowns and pretty ladies on horseback. Usually there was a team of horses leaning into a load that only a Goliath could move, crowds of happy people, each with a balloon in hand, and a jumble of midway rides. It was time for the World Famous Canadian National Exhibition.

Upon seeing the poster for the first time one would go rushing breathlessly home to plead to the highest authority. More often than not the answer was a straight but understanding no, but if the year had been exceptionally good, father would nod solemnly at the evening dinner table and our hearts would soar.

I would return many times in the next few weeks to that poster to scrutinize more closely the delights that awaited us in Toronto.

The morning couldn't have come sooner, but it was still a startling experience to be shaken awake at five o'clock. The sun had not yet touched the eastern horizon and the country-side was gripped in a deathly silence that seemed so unnatural. The damp chill air of the morning cut through my thin windbreaker as we hustled to the station to meet the train.

The trip to Toronto was as much an adventure as the Ex itself. The rhythmic clack of the wheels on the steel below, the swaying of the car and the baleful call of the whistle tantalized the senses. With my nose pressed against the window I watched the sun come up over fields much richer than our own, as telegraph poles blurred by. I returned countless times to fill a cone shaped paper cup with tepid water with a peculiar metallic taste. I stared in the wonderment and silence as a porter came down the aisle peddling warm pop, chocolate bars and comic books, (all priced five or ten cents more than the store back home).

Finally, the train arrived in Toronto, and after a short trolley ride from Union Station, there before us in all its towering glory stood the regal Princess Gate. (In my heart I knew that only the gate presided over by St. Peter could be grander than this.)

The next four hours were a mad swirl of sensations, some lost forever, but others etched indelibly in my mind, as clear now as they were on that warm August day. I recall Elsie the cow in her parlour, as stately as any queen; reaching out to touch the shiny metallic skin of a new roadster under the watchful eye of a stern overseer; tasting miniature weiners offered as samples to the passing crowd by a woman in an apron; collecting pamphlets, literature and a wooden yardstick with a picture of a can of paint being poured over the world on it, in a Loblaw's shopping bag and trudging the load around until the bottom scraped out of the bag and I salvaged the yard stick and some pictures of new cars; having a hot dog lunch in father looking at each other in a different sort of way; and the clang of the bell on the front of the little train with rubber wheels that cruised about the site.

Actually we were there for six hours. The first four hours belonged to the parents and we were kept in tow as we visited just about every building and booth on the grounds. Finally father doled out the allowance, $2 each and a promise to meet in two hours time at the Princess Gate.

Like one does with a particularly tasty piece of cake or the biggest, most mysterious Christmas present, we had saved the best for last. The glittering midway lay spread out before us, a carpet of sparkling lights, hoarse voiced barkers, exotic side shows, squealing rides and enticing games.

I recall trying to knock down three wooden milk bottles piled pyramid style. My pitching arm, usually deadly accurate, must have been a bit off, because the best I could do was set two of the bottles on their sides. The carney must have felt it was an effort worthy of my size, for when no one was looking, he reached under the counter and pulled out a prize. It was a rubber tube with a wooden mouthpiece that sounded like a duck call when I blew it. I was delighted.

Further along the street a hawk was selling a colourful imitation bird on a stick. When the thing swung through the air it gave off a half-hearted whistle that sounded more like a whimper than a song of joy. I bought one immediately.

Next the ferris wheel and swiftly I was carried to a height never before experienced by man. Pink sweet candy floss followed, the tilt-a-whirl, merry-go-round, a candied apple and one last disappointed shot at the milk bottles. The two hours had evaporated.

Reluctantly I made my way to the appointed spot and with a last look at the glittering magic of the CNE we headed back to the station and the sleepy ride home.

The bird's whistle fell out and the stick broke the day after we got home. The rubber thing with the wooden mouthpiece lasted about two weeks when the rubber split. But, I have more than these things to take me back to days in late August, much more.

July was mostly a beautiful, sunny, warm month. Although the temperatures seemed to be above normal, there was only a half a degree difference from the average registered for July last year.

In the period July 1 - 25 there was only 4 mm of rain. However, in the last six days of the month there was enough rainfall to bring the July accumulation up to the normal amount.

Reducing the risk

The introduction of the roadside breath testing equipment to the Haliburton area by provincial authorities is a step in the right direction.

The local OPP detachment has now been equipped with an alcohol level evaluation roadside tester, more colloquially known as ALERT. The machine allows police officers to check the alcohol level in a driver's blood stream at the time a vehicle is stopped. The system will remove a lot of second guessing by police and eliminate inconvenience for those drivers who are not impaired.

But more importantly, the system will assist in reducing the number of alcohol impaired drivers who continue to take such a high toll on our highways. Not only is impaired driving an offense under the criminal code, carrying provisions for mandatory fines, license suspensions and possible imprisonment, it is also an act that shows total disregard for the safety of other drivers on the road.

North America society has in the past taken a rather lenient view of this type of offense. Perhaps this attitude is related to our impression that inebriated individuals are all happy-go-lucky people, just having a good time. While that may be true in certain situations, when an impaired person climbs in behind the wheel of a vehicle he becomes a potential killer.

Driving entails a great deal of trust on the part of all users of the highway. A driver expects others to follow certain rules and act within certain restraints which the community as a whole has decided is both prudent and desirable. We may not have a personal pact with the driver of a car speeding toward us in the opposite lane at 100 kilometres per hour, but through trust alone we expect him to follow the rules of the road and he expects the same from us.

When a driver takes to the road in an impaired condition that trust is broken. The consequences for the impaired driver and others on the highway can be catastrophic. Anything the police can do to reduce the number of impaired drivers on our roads should be enthusiastically welcomed by those who want to see an end to the needless carnage on our highways.

Point of view

Ontario residents may be facing a home heating oil and gasoline shortage this fall and winter and such shortages may only be the first of many, Ontario NDP Leader Mike Cassidy said Thursday.

"Recent reports have indicated that inventories of heating oil are lower than normal," Cassidy said. "Provincial officials will be meeting with the National Energy Board tomorrow to assess the situation and I just hope they haven't left things too late." He made the statement in a news conference outlining an eight-point program to deal with the oil shortage.

"We have two choices at this point—we can do nothing and hope the problem goes away or we can plan and use energy more efficiently to minimize the impact of dwindling fossil fuel reserves."

"The first choice is a fool's choice and unfortunately, it seems to be the choice of the Davis government. The problem is not going to go away. If the problem is not met, Ontario citizens in the not too distant future will be facing severe disruptions in their way of life and standard of living."

"The most immediate problem is meeting the potential problem of home heating oil and gasoline shortages this winter. Policies of the federal and provincial governments have led us to the point where the only thing that will save us is luck."

"Ontario needs a policy that recognizes the need to conserve and recognizes the challenge of new fuel technologies. An important benefit of our program is that in addition to guaranteeing we have the energy we need at prices we can afford, we will be able to create new jobs and new industries."

The NDP's program calls for retention of PetroCan as a federal crown corporation, opposition to any further oil price increases for domestic supplies, a large-scale program of home insulation, enactment of an energy-efficient building code, improvements in mass transit, a package of programs to save commuters energy and money, a stronger commitment to solar heating and methanol production from municipal and forest wastes.

Cassidy said the policy could be financed by a shift of just 10 per cent of Ontario Hydro's long-term borrowing.

"Hydro is continuing to overbuild an already overbuilt electrical generating capacity. Hydro is now spending about $2 billion a year on expanding electrical generation capacity; government spending on conservation programs and development of renewable energy sources is only $15.8 million a year. We have a surplus of electricity and a potential shortage of other energy supplies and we have to bring the system into balance," Cassidy said.

Petrocan

As the country's major energy user and a province without its own oil and gas reserves, Ontario must have guarantees of supply. The experience late this winter with the diversion of oil destined for Canada by Exxon, Imperial Oil's parent company, is clear evidence that multinationals serve different masters than the Canadian people.

The Ontario government must exert all the pressure possible on the Clark government to keep PetroCan in public hands.

Pricing

The Clark government's policy to quickly move the price of Canadian oil to world levels will inflict real hardship on low-income Ontario residents while reaping windfall profits for the oil companies. This policy must be opposed.

Home Insulation

We propose a program of grants and loans to homeowners to cover the entire capital cost of insulation to the standards developed by CMHC. For homes built before 1961, the program would provide loans to cover the difference between federal grants and the total insulation cost (an average of $1,000 a home). For homes built after 1961, the program would provide a loan for the entire cost. The loans would be given out at interest rates slightly above the rate Ontario Hydro pays for long-term borrowings. It would be paid back at the rate of energy savings.

The target is the insulation of 100,000 homes a year. That would save about 17 million gallons of fuel oil — enough to heat 23,000 homes. Savings would also be made in electricity and natural gas. Insulation of all Ontario homes would save 263 million gallons every winter.

Meeting the initial target of 100,000 homes in the first year would create about 4,000 jobs, according to the Economic Council of Canada.

Building Code

Ontario should immediately adopt a set of energy-efficient standards for new buildings, similar to that proposed last year by the National Research Council. Stronger standards should be developed beyond the NRC proposals and gradually phased in. Energy efficiency standards must also be applied to apartment buildings, hotels and other commercial buildings.

The program would add 25 man years of employment for every 1,000 new housing starts.

Mass transit

Automobile travel in urban areas accounts for one-third of Canada's transportation energy use. In Metro Toronto, 44 per cent of people driving to work travel by themselves.

Improvements in mass transit designed to increase ridership levels which have been declining in recent years will provide us with significant energy savings. Last winter, I proposed a Transit Ridership Improvement Plan (TRIP) which would provide grants and loans to municipalities which have innovative ways of increasing ridership and efficiency.

The program would receive $21 million a year over a two-year period.

Commuter package

A 1978 study by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications showed that establishment of 300 new van pool programs in the province would save about 1.5 million gallons of gasoline annually. Van pools are generally self-financing and provide commuters who use them with savings estimated at about $600 a year.

We propose that 300 new van pool programs be established by September, 1980. Some freeway lanes and ramps should be set aside for such high occupancy vehicles as car and van pools and buses.

An MTC package of commuter and transit programs, including the ones we have proposed, could save about 10 per cent of urban gasoline demand — about 110 million gallons a year.

Solar heating

A strong and active commitment by government to solar heating could, by the end of the century, make solar energy account for 12.1 per cent of Ontario's total heating demand, according to a study prepared for the Royal Commission of Electric Power Planning.

Incentives necessary to achieve a rapid rate of solar implementation would involve:

- continued remission of sales tax on solar heating components;
- grants to cover 10 percent of the cost of solar heating installations;
- 20-year mortgages at low interest rates to cover the remainder of such an investment;
- legislation to protect sun rights and insure that solar investment does not lead to higher property taxes;
- siting standards for new home construction so that the fullest advantage can be taken of solar heating.

Cost of the grant portion of the program is estimated at $350 million by the end of the century with less than half that amount spent over the next decade.

Committee prepares for Viet family

The Minden and area effort to sponsor a refugee family from Vietnam has moved into high gear. At a meeting Thursday evening various sub-committees were organized and a commitment was made to approach the federal authorities with a firm offer of sponsorship.

Revered Douglas Miller of the Minden United Church was selected by the group to head the over-all campaign. He has been instrumental in organizing an effort to sponsor a refugee family. Assisting Reverend Miller will be Lorne coburn of Minden as secretary, and Gary Thurston who will act as the group's treasurer.

Since the group has representation from churches and interested individuals in Norland, Cobocok and other communities to the south, it was decided to name the organization the Victoria-Haliburton Refugee Committee.

Four committees were also organized to look after various aspects of the family's resettlement in Canada. Pierce Whitney of Ingoldsby is in charge of the accommodation and furniture committee, Marion Lodenquai and Paul Heffer, both of Minden, will be looking after clothing, Ralph Brown and Phyllis Hopkins, both of Norland, will form the nucleus of the food committee and David Barker and Jack Brezina will be handling resettlement. It is expected that these committees will be expanded in the future and volunteers were invited to contact those involved if they are willing to assist.

Donations to the refugee fund can be made at either of the two chartered banks in Minden, at area churches or by sending a cheque to Victoria-Haliburton Refugee Committee, Box 720, Minden. All donors will receive a receipt which can be used for income tax purposes.

Boat strikes island

A Waterloo girl was injured early last Tuesday morning when the boat in which she was riding, crashed into an island in Kennis Lake.

Carol Burley, 17, was being given a ride home by Kent Hansen, 18, when the accident occurred.

The 18 and a half foot boat with a 115 horsepower engine was travelling about 30 mph when it struck the island.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Bill Clendenning.

Haliburton Rotary makes the good times

It's over again for another year, but the memory will linger on in the minds of everyone who attended the Haliburton Rotary Carnival, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

The midway attracted the young at heart, as usual, and the armwrestling event was interesting, but the highlight of the two-day event was the "Monster Parade" on Wednesday evening.

The best entry in the parade was Silverwood's Dairy with the best boys' or girls' entries going to Camp White Pine, second Camp Wanakita, third Haliburton Scouts and fourth Browndale.

Taking the commercial trophy was LaRue Motors, second Eagle Lake General Store, third Haliburton Marine and fourth Wig-a-Mog Inn with a special mention going to The Village Shoppe.

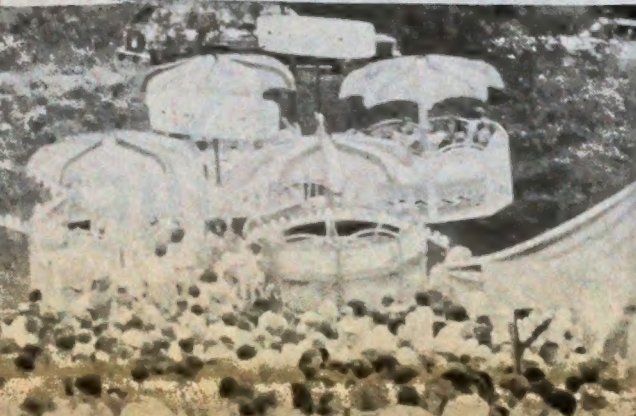

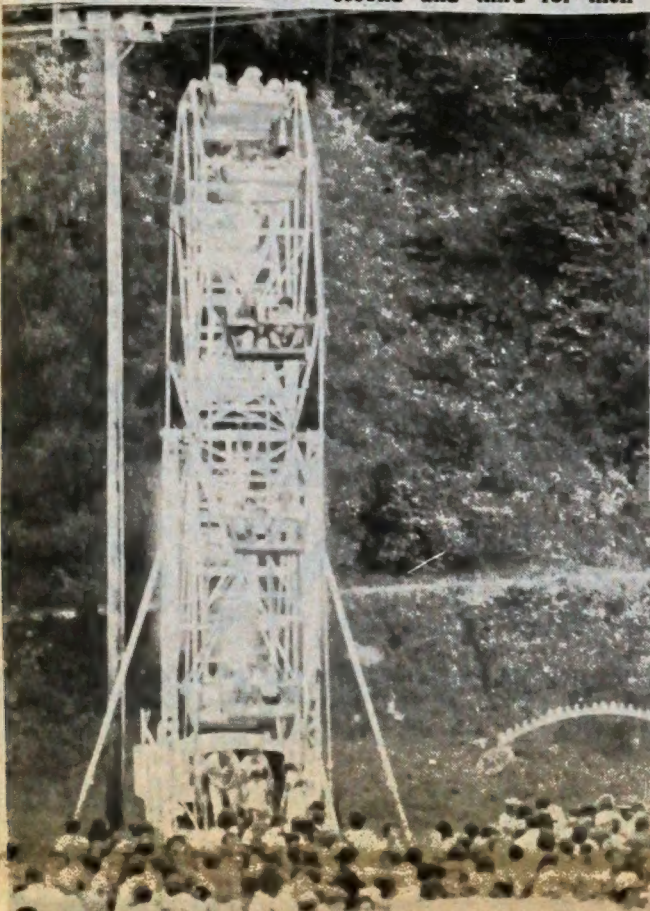

In the special division, the Red Cross came up with the best entry while Extencicare took second and Rotary was named third.

Contributing in the individual class was first place winner Evy Dodd. Two unidentified girls placed second and third for their costumes and riding horses. Entertaining the audience at the talent show was Sharon

Beck, of Toronto, who was named the winner while popular Haliburton singer,

Lisa Teatro, came in second. exciting mid-week days in All in all it was a couple of Haliburton.

Carnival time

Everyone was out for a good time at the Haliburton Rotary Carnival in the village last Tuesday and Wednesday. Throngs came to see the parade on Wednesday night and then crowded the midway as the picture at the left shows. Above, two boys wait anxiously to throw the balls at the Rotary Splash game.

Fitness. In your heart you know it's right.

New Program Announcement

Metallurgical (MATERIALS TESTING) Engineering Technician

The Opportunities

The materials testing field is expanding rapidly, and the demand for trained technicians currently is outstripping the supply. Our materials testing courses were developed in consultation with both employers and testing personnel, and have received their enthusiastic support and endorsement.

The Field

Materials testing technicians are at work in laboratories across the nation checking a variety of materials and products, from plastics to steel, aircraft components to ball point pens. The scope is broad; since this type of work must be carried out regularly during manufacture, in service, and at periodic maintenance times to detect internal flaws and also to ensure that contract and/or quality specifications are adhered to.

As a materials testing graduate, you will be able to adapt to the work generally carried out in industrial, research, or independent testing laboratories. The broad base of knowledge gained through your College program would allow you to specialize later in one or more of the destructive or non-destructive testing techniques used in controlling the quality of materials and final products.

Your program also leads to certification by the Canadian Government Specification Board (CGSB) following some appropriate industrial experience.

Admission Requirements:

An Ontario Secondary School Graduation Diploma of any Secondary School program which includes Mathematics, English and a Science.

Exceptions including applications from mature students will be considered on an individual basis, particularly those with industrial experience in the areas of welding, metallurgy and manufacturing.

Exemptions may be granted for equivalent work completed at other post-secondary institutions.

Successful completion of certain technical courses in secondary school may lead to exemption for Grade 13 graduates after a qualifying test or project. Grade 12 graduates may be exempt in drafting, if they have completed this in secondary school. All cases are treated on an individual basis.

Haliburton first as playoffs begin

The Wilberforce ladies travelled to Minden a week ago Monday night only to be beaten 25-10. Ann Hewson and Marg Fielding led the Minden ladies at the plate while Marla Mac Naull had a good night for Wilberforce. Andrea Burk was the winning pitcher while Judy Faul took the loss.

West Guilford met Haliburton on Monday night also and they gave Haliburton their fourth loss of the season but Tuesday night the Haliburton team went back to West Guilford and defeated the ladies 6-2. Nancy Brink was the winner Monday night while Nancy Maughan took the win Tuesday night.

Tuesday night also saw Minden defeated by Carnarvon for the first time this season. Joan Algar and Sharon Harrison had big nights at the plate for Carnarvon. Marg Darby was the winning pitcher while Ann Hewson took the loss.

In other games this week Wilberforce took two from Snowdon and Carnarvon wound out their final game of the schedule by defeating Snowdon at home. The Minden Homestead team have one game remaining with Wilberforce and if Minden wins that game there will be three teams tied for second place. Haliburton has wrapped up first place while West Guilford and Carnarvon are tied for second with Minden two points behind with one game to play. Wilberforce and Snowdon are out of the play-off picture.

Ladies host tourney

The Haliburton County Ladies Softball League will be hosting a tournament in Haliburton next weekend.

Eight teams, including Oakwood, Bow Lake, Paudash, Coboconk, Little Britain and two all star teams from the Haliburton league, will be trying their best to take the trophy home.

The excitement begins at 9 a.m. at the Haliburton Baseball diamond, beside the Community Centre. Watch this spot next week for a complete schedule of the games.

Dave Dollo, with his back to the camera, is safe at second base after a throw from the catcher challenged his lead-off. The action was part of a Wednesday night contest at the Minden ball diamond. The local squad defeated the Brewers of Bobcaygeon by a 14-3 margin. A game earlier in the week against Woodville was rained out. Baseball fans will be treated to a tournament this weekend at the Haliburton County Fall Fair, when its expected teams from throughout the area will be taking part.

Farm News and Views

Armyworm outbreak

During the past week, many farmers in Victoria & Haliburton Counties have found serious infestations of armyworms in their crops.

These pests have caused considerable damage to many fields of spring grain, and have started to attack some corn fields. A number of farmers have sprayed their crops to control the armyworm, some using aerial sprayers.

The adult is a light brown moth which flies at night. In early June the female moth lays her eggs in grassy fields such as hay and grain fields. The larva then feed on the leaves of plants of the grass family, and grow rapidly for several weeks. A full-grown larva is about 1 1/2 inches long and the size of a pencil.

The larva then burrow into the ground to pupate, emerging as an adult the next spring.

The armyworms damage grain crops by eating the leaves, and by eating off the seed stems. In corn, the leaves are damaged. When the worms have eaten off all the food available they then travel in search of new feed. This habit gives them their name. While they can move quickly, they only travel from one field to another, not for miles across a township as some people have suggested this week.

Once a grain field is nearing maturity, the armyworm will move out in search of greener feed. The later-seeded fields of oats and barley have been the ones hardest hit in this area this year.

Armyworms seldom eat legume crops such as alfalfa, clover, trefoil and beans.

While several insecticide sprays are effective against armyworms, most farmers have been using Sevin. One and a quarter pounds of 85% material is used on an acre. Other insecticides used are Lannate L, Malathion or Methoxychlor.

The ideal time to spray is when the armyworms are feeding on the plants. This is usually in the evening, however, if they're hungry, it can be any time of the day. Also, spraying is only needed on a field which has a large population of worms present in it - over 6 worms per square foot. There is no advantage in spraying a field which has no worms present.

There are several parasites and predators which attack armyworms. These should become prevalent enough to control most of this year's worms before they become adults next year, and cause even worse problems.

$1,500 stolen property recovered

Two Scarborough youths will be attending court on October 6 after being charged this week with break, enter and theft.

The thieves apparently gained entrance to a cottage on White Lake Road, last Wednesday, by breaking a chain and lock on the entrance gate and then climbing through a window into the cottage.

Firewood stolen

Four Brampton youths have been charged with theft under $200 after some firewood was discovered missing from two Stanhope Township homes.

Arthur Beatty, R. R. 2 Minden, reported to police that firewood was missing from his residence and, at the same time, wood had also been taken from a nearby cottage.

The firewood was apparently stolen sometime between July 26-28.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Dennis Potter.
